

WANTED

For War Crimes in Iraq and Afghanistan

Lt General James Mattis
Led the April 2004 assault on the Iraqi city of Fallujah, killing over 300 women and children.¹ *“It's fun to shoot
some people”*

Lt General David Richards
Commander of NATO forces
in southern Afghanistan,
May 2006 – February 2007.

Hundreds, maybe thousands, of civilians were killed there by aerial bombing during this period.²

Both men are scheduled to attend the 'UK Defence Conference 2007', (<http://tinyurl.com/2bffzp>) in The Radisson Edwardian Mayfair Hotel, London, on 10 September 2007. If you see them, contact the police. Do not try to apprehend them - they are considered extremely dangerous.

1 See 'No Longer Unknowable: Falluja's April Civilian Toll is 600', Iraq Body Count, 26 October 2004, <http://tinyurl.com/yqbzwe>

2 See 'Hearts and Minds in Southern Afghanistan', Senlis Council, December 2006, <http://tinyurl.com/28n6bm>