

SLUM DOG, SUFFERING AND STRICKEN BLACK BRITISH- WE ARE HERE!! NOT IN INDIA- RIGHT HERE!!!

If someone endures forty years of beatings, racism, sabotage, neglect, lies against them, refusAL TO AXCKNOWLEDGE THAT ONE BLACK PERSON CAN TELL THE TRUTH AGAINST ONE WHITE PERSON, one become brain-washed. BUT NOT ALL THE PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARE AGAINST A BLACK PERSON CAN KILL THAT PERSON.

There is evidence of this truth around us. The truth will set you free, says the Bible and I am an un-ashamed black person.

My dear friend Sally Ramage has lived has lived over seventy-five percent of her fifty-six years in the United Kingdom and her history is a documentation that beats Austhwitz and Guantamo by far. She went to death's door and back many times, though sheer negligence, bias, prejudice, lies, and most importantly, Britain's COVERT AND OVERT RACISM.

But did this brave brave woman turn over and die?

No, No, No.

Sally Ramage decided that with every breath of life left in her, she was going to show Britain up. Sabotaged, lied about, on oath and by several who committed perjury (but being white people, they were believed), Saly Ramage studied, worked, worked, worked, dragging herself on her two elbow crutches to university, crying with pain, sad, sad, sad, sad, sad tale of woe.

But her strategy has succeeded in her way of letting the paper trail tell the tale. One cannot go back and wipe away history, though many attempt to do so. But before she dies, this woman can tell herself that she has told her tale by letting the paper trail do the talking. Guantamo, you are nothing compared to the physical suffering , blatant disregard to this woman's human rights, racist abuse, racist abuse and still more racist abuse.

But still, she knows that her tale has mostly been told. There is still much more to do. Those British so-called newspaper people who have themselves been most racist, brutal and brutish, let the people say that you fool no-one. Newspapers are the most destructive element in the UNITED KINGDOM, a country rife with covert racism. Covert racism is insiduous. Covert racism spits , not in your face, but behind you and before you. Covert racism has made black kids turn on themselves and switched on the self- destruct button.

Whom are we fooling, oh ye great British race?

NO-ONE AT ALL.

The whole world knows that in the United Kingdom, covert racism has ruined many black people's psychological spirit, causing many to turn against themselves, much like some psychiatric patients who continue to cut themselves. Not all black people, some are more vulnerable to succumbing to the psychological warfare than others.

After slavery, black people quickly lightened their skin, changed their names trying to copy the image of those who commercially exploited them.

Why are over thirty percent of mental patients black, when only seven percent of the country's citizens are black?

It is because they have been deemed to be so, not because they are so.

Why is over thirty percent of the country's prisons filled with black people when only seven percent of the country's citizens are black?

It is because they are picked out to be so, some believe.

When will this fear of foreigners end?

In "The Refugee in International Law" , Guy Goodwin-Gill states the definition of refugees for the purposes of the United Nations. He says(page 7) ...."The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) succeeded the IRO(International Refugee Organisation) as the principal UN agency concerned with refugees..... (page 17)the class of persons within the mandate of, or of concern to,UNHCR, includes (1) those who, having left their country , can, on a case-by-case basis, be determined to have a well-founded fear of persecution on certain specified grounds; and (2) those often large groups or categories or persons who , likewise having crossed an international frontier , can be determined or presumed to be without , or unable to avail themselves of , the protection of the government of their

State of origin. This is the broad meaning of the term "refugee" for the purposes of the United Nations.....

Britain's history is bound up with successive waves of refugees. Southampton, England, was one of the biggest in transmigration centres in the world at the turn of the 19th Century. In 1893 it was a stopping point for thousands of Jews fleeing pogroms in Russia and Eastern Europe . Most of the refugees went on to New York, but about 150,000 settled in the UK. The US sent the refugees back but Britain refused them .

(1) During the first world war , 250,000 Belgian refugees arrived in the UK in the biggest influx of the 20th Century.

(2) The British had pledged to defend Belgian neutrality and failed. Between 1939 and 1947 Britain accepted 130,000 Polish refugees. In 1944 Britain was one of the countries to allow Poland to fall into the Soviet sphere of influence. Then there was the arrival of the Ugandan Asians in 1970 and the Bosnians and Kosovans recently.

The harsh restrictions on immigration into the UK has not changed since the 1880's. when Jews immigrated to Britain. The Aliens Act 1905 restricted "undesirable and destitute immigrants ", for example, people thought to be a charge on public funds or detriment to public health. In the first four years of the Act 1378 Jews were deported many of whom had lived with their families in Britain for years.

In the 1930's when another influx of Jews occurred the press and Trade Unions stirred up uneasiness among the population. In 1938 , an editorial in the Sunday Express said .."but just now there is a big influx of foreign Jews into Britain. They are over-running the country. They are trying to enter the medical profession in great numbers. They wish to practice as dentists.....".

By the start of the war about 55000 Jewish refugees came to Britain. Refuge to Britain was dependent upon the Jewish community providing for all of the refugees' needs until the government was forced into providing some assistance.(1a)

Recently, on the 2nd October 2000, there has been a change to citizenship legislation which began as long ago as 1377 with the dual-chamber parliament established under Edward the third. This change is the Human Rights Act and it is the second biggest change to the Justice system since the Magna Carta and gives the right to life and a fair trial , freedom from torture, freedom of expression and freedom to marry and have a family.

(3) This is a change to citizenship legislation which had begun to take shape since the denotation of "British Citizenship" under the British Nationality Act 1981.

(4) Yet it is to be noted that, among the 26 EU member states, Britain still does not have an enforceable Bill of Rights

(5) In 1985, the governments of 5 EEC member states signed an agreement towards the "gradual abolition of checks at their common borders" in Schengen, a small town in Luxembourg. The UK did not sign this agreement. In 1995 a number of governments went ahead and put the Schengen acquis into force and in 1997 it was annexed to the Amsterdam Treaty by Protocol. Britain still has strong external border controls.

(6). In 2001 the question of strong internal control by way of national identity card is being debated.

(7). But Britain is not alone in this restrictive immigration policy. Restrictive immigration and asylum policies have been continually institutionalised from 1985 to 2000 by European "umbrella" agreements such as the "Schengen Accords", "the Dublin Convention", "the Third Pillar of the Maastricht Treaty" and "the Amsterdam Treaty".

(8). It seems that the European democracies, Britain included, nowadays limits universal liberal rights, as in the "1951 Geneva Convention Relating to Status of Refugees", to community, to protect its social and cultural integrity.(9).

The free movement of people belongs among the basic human freedoms and liberties. The Article 13 of the "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" adapted by the UN in 1948 states

(3) Everyone has the right to freedom of movement and residence within the borders of each State and,

(a) Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.

More specifically the 1951 Geneva Convention relating to the Status of Refugees secures for refugees "the widest possible exercise of .....fundamental rights and freedoms". Article 1 refers to the term "refugee" as anybody who has "a well-founded fear of being persecuted for reason of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion". the Convention guarantees the right to asylum without conditions. In the summer of 2000 the British Home Secretary campaigned to overturn the Geneva Convention claiming that the Convention was outdated.

In 2000 Britain planned a new detention centre on the South coast which will be capable of holding several thousands of refugees awaiting processing.

In 2001 the British Government's immigration policy suffered a setback when the courts ruled that it was acting illegally in fining truck drivers £2000 for each stowaway brought to Britain . (12) .Six conjoined applications for judicial review of decisions by the Secretary of State for the Home Department , namely that the six claimants were liable to penalties as persons responsible for clandestine entrants to the United Kingdom under the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999, The Carrier's Liability (Clandestine Entrants and Sale of Transporters) Regulations 2000 SI2000/658 and the Carrier's Liability(Clandestine Entrants)(Code of Practice)Order 2000 SI 2000/684. Evidence from the United Kingdom Immigration Service stated that the Act aimed to overcome the problems generated by the vast number of attempts to gain clandestine entry to the United Kingdom and to persuade lorry drivers to perform the necessary checks on their vehicles. The claimants were lorry drivers and/or owners or hirers of goods vehicles and trailers. They submitted in their application that the penalty regime introduced by the Act was a disproportionate response to the problem of clandestine entrants and the penalty regime was an unjustifiable restriction on the free movement of goods contrary to Article 28ECTreaty., failed to meet the procedural requirements of Article 6 European Convention on Human Rights.. The government estimates that there are 400 to 800 illegal stowaways entering UK in this way each month and the fines regime was introduced in April 2000 under the Immigration and Asylum Act ..It was held that the effect of the penalty regime amounted to violations of Article 28 and Article 49 EC Treaty that were not justifiable on public policy grounds because it did not comply with the Convention and was a disproportionate response to the problem of clandestine entry. Essentially this case is sited to illustrate the draconian measures the UK government will go to in order to quell its unjustified perception of an immigration problem.

Asylum in Britain today is very difficult to obtain.(13). The most recent asylum seekers in Britain are from Zimbabwe , Iran and Afghan. The Organisation Bail for Immigration Detainees tells of Zimbabweans put into detention and even maximum-security prisons whilst they await their hearings , even though some have relatives and friends here. To detain people on the basis of national identity is a breach of the European Convention

A look at the statistical facts on asylum seekers to the UK shows (Appendix 1 ) that from 1991 to 2000 there were between 15000 and 55000 asylum seekers a year. Appendix 2 shows total acceptances of all immigration for these years to be in the range of 50000 to 100000 a year .In these same years only 2000 to 10000 asylum seekers were granted settlement each year.

For example, looking at 1998, 6680 asylum seekers were granted settlement in a population of approximately 60 million people, that is, 0.01113 % of the UK's population. This is by no means a significant proportion of the population and it is difficult to see any link between Britain's perception that it is asylum "friendly" and the statistical facts.

Conclusion

Britain subscribed to the European Declaration of Human Rights, adopted and proclaimed by the UN General Assembly's resolution in December 1948, and to the 1951 Geneva Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees. Britain's Home Secretary claimed that the agreement of the Convention was "outdated" and stated his intention to place the asylum law on a more rational basis, hence the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999, which imposes tight regulations on asylum (14). There is potential redress to asylum seekers already in the UK by way of the Human Rights Act 1998. If a public authority has acted in a way which is made unlawful by section 6(1) of the Act, a person may bring proceedings against the authority under this Act in the appropriate Court or Tribunal if he or she is a victim of the unlawful act. Such remedies, however, need finances, which, often, genuine asylum seekers have none of.

The moral proclamations of liberalism in Britain have never really been borne out by liberal attitudes to refugees in reality in the past or in the present. The figures speak for themselves. The tight regulations in the Immigration and Asylum Act are contrary to Britain's own perception that it is a liberal country.

In the international picture, the UK was one of the first Western countries to legislate against immigration with the Naturalization Act 1870, which constrains and restricts refugees, asylum seekers and those who wish to immigrate to a better life. [Appendix 5], although there is a Refugee Council in the UK which provides legal and other counselling as well as Human Rights Organisations (for example, Amnesty International) whose reporting, monitoring and lobbying activities include refugees and persecuted persons.
